Central Intelligence
Washington, DC 20505

Dear Bob,

I am writing to ask you to serve as a discussant at our forthcoming colloquium on "Intelligence Requirements for the 1990's." This program will seek to explore how the US can go about obtaining and using the intelligence necessary to meet the anticipated challenges of the next decade. For your information, I have enclosed the proposed agenda for this meeting.

We would like you to comment on US analytical requirements for the 1990's. We have asked two paperwriters to address the following subjects: (i) the kinds of analytical products the US should seek in the next decade; (ii) the kinds of procedures, resources, people, etc. necessary to accomplish these objectives; and (iii) the bureaucratic or organizational structure that would enable us to accomplish these missions.

We should welcome your views on any or all of these subjects, and/or your comments on the papers, presented by Paul Seabury (former PFIAB member) and Elliot Cohen (DoD and PFIAB consultant). We would like you to speak for fifteen to forty-five minutes, and of course would understand if you could not stay for the entire session and had to leave after your remarks.

The Colloquium will be held at the International Club December 4 and 5, 1987. The panel we would like you to participate on is scheduled for Friday, December 4. To accommodate your schedule we can either hold it in the morning or afternoon.

Ltr - will do. Send papers to me.
